

It is not beyond the range of probability that Woodrow Wilson might linger about a week or four days. It is of course possible that something may snip at any moment.

Mr. Wilson's failure to take nourishment today is a serious matter.

THE WEATHER
Mostly cloudy tonight and Sunday, probably light rain or snow in northern portions; somewhat colder Sunday afternoon or night.

BIG RURAL SCHOOL HELD IMPERATIVE

Country Children Have Right to Best, Declares Supt. John Callahan.

Madison — The one-room school house must go from Wisconsin; it must be replaced by consolidated rural schools wherever possible, according to John Callahan, state superintendent of public instruction. The rural school situation, as summarized by Superintendent Callahan in a statement today follows:

There are 6,500 one-room schools in Wisconsin.

There are 1,327 rural schools enrolling 15 pupils or less.

There are 450 rural schools enrolling more than 15 pupils. A total of 100,200 children attend the rural schools.

There are 6,200 teachers in the state with less than two years academic and professional training beyond high school.

Four thousand two hundred schools have an eight-month school year.

Sixteen thousand boys and girls live in districts where high school opportunities are not offered.

Seventy-five per cent in the average daily attendance in rural schools.

"This is the indictment against the one-room school," Superintendent Callahan said. "It is educationally inefficient, it cannot give to the future citizens of our commonwealth that fundamental elementary and high school education which the civic, social and economic problems which they must meet demand."

BELOIT PROFESSOR GETS PATENT UPON COLOR REOSTAT

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Beloit — Notice of the granting of patent rights on a color reostat was received here a few days ago by Prof. H. C. Weller, head of the public speaking department of Beloit college. The color reostat is a device whereby a series of electric lights of primary or any colors may be combined in intensities of various proportions. The invention is particularly designed for laboratory use, for use in advertising for theaters and for any place where it is desirable to shift electric lights from one color to another without the present need of many switches. The operator turns a knob until the pointer indicates on a dial the color combination desired.

SUGGESTS HONOR TO EARLY RESIDENTS

Names of St. John, Robinson, Buckingham, Croft, Proposed for Streets.

Interest in the proposed re-naming of four Janesville streets—Washington avenue, Park avenue, Center avenue and West Bluff street—continues to grow and the Street Names Editor's desk is fast getting piled up with suggestions which will be used by the council in choosing the new cognomens. The name of Washington avenue for Washington avenue is growing in popularity, while any number of suggestions are being made for the other streets.

To honor some of the early residents of Janesville, the names of St. John, Robinson and Croft have been proposed by one woman, who says she has long felt that the city itself should change its name to St. John.

Robinson Avenue Suggested. "It would seem quite fitting," says this writer, "for those four of the oldest streets to be named for some of the oldest families, living in an early day in the vicinity of those streets. Surely one, perhaps Center avenue, should be named for Dr. J. W. St. John and one for Dr. O. P. Robinson, perhaps Park avenue. Dr. Robinson and Dr. St. John were two of our earliest settlers and were probably the best beloved pair of old philosophers in these parts for many a year, besides being both mayors of Janesville.

"As there has been a Buckingham family in the first ward since the earliest recollection of the oldest inhabitant, and as the Croft family, from England, took up their abode not far from the foot of West Bluff street, so early in Janesville's history that an invitation to their home on the west bank of the river, was considered 50 years ago as an indication that the recipient was duly admitted into polite society. It would be eminently appropriate that their memories should be honored by the application of these names to the other streets mentioned, Washington avenue, becoming Buckingham avenue and West Bluff street being Croft avenue.

"These suggestions are from one who has long felt that the city itself might very appropriately exchange its present cognomen for that of St. John."

Washington Ave. in 4th Ward. Not to detract from the value of this suggestion, the Street Names editor wants to bring out that Washington avenue is not a First ward street, but is located in the Fourth ward. It runs east and west, from Center avenue to Chestnut street, parallel to and a block north of Western avenue. In making the suggestion in regard to Washington avenue, the intention is that it is a First ward street, whereas the woman probably had reference to Washington street, the name of which it is planned to retain. Even that, however, would not prevent Washington avenue from being appropriately called Croft or Buckingham.

Another suggestion is that Center avenue, a beautiful street, be given a beautiful name, Willard boulevard, in honor of that famous woman, Frances Willard. In connection with this proposal, it might be stated that Janesville already has a Willard avenue laid out, it being provided in the plat of one of the new subdivisions near the school for the blind. In this same plat are Crosby avenue, Osborne avenue, Grant avenue, Joliet street and Nicolet street.

Sunrise Avenue Suggested. From another source comes the suggestion that West Bluff street be called Sunrise Lane or Sunrise avenue. Another proposes the name, Memorial avenue, for Center avenue. In case memorial trees are ever placed along the Janesville-Delet road in honor of the world war veterans.

Other Good Ones. "I object to the name of South Madison boulevard for Center avenue, as has been suggested by some one," writes in another person. "For the remaining, I would suggest, instead, either Monterey avenue or Broadway."

It has been practically decided by the councilmen to change the name of McKee boulevard to South Jackson street as it is nothing more than a continuation of that thoroughfare. In view of this contemplated change, one proposal is that if the name McKee is taken away from its present location, why not apply

The New Paige

Try to Match Its Performance or Its New Price

HERE'S the New Paige—unmatchable in performance and value. Pay what you please, you cannot buy more sure ability on the road or delightful docility in traffic. So flexible is the big 70 h.p. Paige motor.

More money will not buy a roomier car. Nor will it buy a more comfortable car, for Paige has the 131-inch wheelbase, the 5-foot spring suspension, the balance, that give utmost comfort.

Never Before So Fine a Paige

You know Paige as a large, able, comfortable car. Finer each year, say those who know it best. And the New Paige goes a step further. It is not only finer—but immensely greater value.

The big 70 h.p. Paige motor is the motor of the New Paige. Refined for even greater service. The clutch and transmission which made Paige so famously easy to handle are also retained with added smoothness.

Paige-Tinken axles; sealed-in-lubrication universal joints of steel; ball-bearing steering spindles; the tremendous, unyielding frame—all of which added to Paige reputation for ruggedness—are found with improvements in the New Paige.

Here's What the New Paige Will Do

Think of what it means to have a car that will do 70 miles an hour. Such a reserve of power means that you can climb hills in high when others shift and stall—dash ahead of the crowd—means a motor you will never hurt by over-taxing.

Think of what it means to have a car that takes you in unjolted comfort at good speed over roads which other cars hesitate to travel. The luxury of Paige motoring is very real to all who know it.

Think of having a motor so silent that you sometimes wonder whether it is running. So smooth that a pencil may be balanced on end on the radiator cap—so flexible that you can drive from 2 to 70 miles an hour in high gear.

Think of all this at the startlingly low price of the New Paige.

New Low Prices Create New Value

Last year the Paige Phaeton cost $2450 factory. Today, the New Paige—still the same big, powerful quality car, refined in many ways, improved in style, bettered in performance—costs many hundreds of dollars less. You will be astonished when you inspect the car and learn its price to find that you may now possess so fine a car so economically. It is a car that will stand comparison with the finest in appearance, performance and dependability. A finer Paige than ever before at hundreds of dollars less.

How Can We Do It?

How can we offer so much at such a price? The answer is simple!

Three years ago our business was 15,000 cars a year. Now, with the Paige-built Jewett, our capacity is 500 cars a day. The saving in overhead is important, as you can see. Think what this means in economy.

An Exclusive Car

Remember—there is only one Paige—the best we know how to build. Known the world over as a fine, wonderfully performing car—a car all covet. There are no smaller, cheaper Paige models. You need never explain which Paige you own.

Drive the new Paige. We'll be glad to have you. Telephone or call today for a demonstration. There's no obligation, of course.

Local Methodist Worker Is Prominent in State Program

MRS. F. T. RICHARDS.

An active worker in the local Methodist church and conspicuous in church work throughout the state is Mrs. F. T. Richards, wife of Dr. F. T. Richards, 108 Cherry street. For the past four or five years Mrs. Richards has been superintendent of young people's work of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society in the Wisconsin Conference, which includes the districts of Appleton, Fond du Lac, Milwaukee and Janesville. The Janesville district, which includes her charges, has Mrs. F. J. Turner, this city, as superintendent of young people's work, under the supervision of Mrs. Richards. A district rally is to be held in this city in April.

A district meeting is never held that Mrs. Richards is not invited to attend and appear on the program. For the past 11 years she has attended the Northwest Branch meetings, which comprises the following states, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana and Illinois, the last branch meeting having been held last fall in Peoria, Ill. The Northwest branch is the largest of the 11 branches of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist churches of the United States. This branch contributes one-fourth of all the funds raised by the W. F. M. S. of the country, the quota for last year having been set at $2,000,000 for the United States.

Helped Write Pageant.
Few local residents know that Mrs. Richards, in collaboration with Mrs. O. N. Townsend, Janesville, O., vice president at large of the W. F. M. S., wrote the missionary pageant, "Links in a Great Adventure," which was accepted and presented at the national convention in Des Moines, Ia., last November.

The pageant was presented at the Methodist church in Des Moines before 2,500, with Mrs. Richards and Mrs. Townsend in attendance. They were special guests, as only the national officers are eligible to attend. The pageant was given by 34 people and dealt with the work of the home base and foreign field activities of the W. F. M. S. The costumes were beautiful and the lighting effects unusually according to those who saw the pageant. It was pronounced as attractively forceful, showing the church summoning to aid her various agencies, including the 11 branches of the W. F. M. S. and other divisions of this society. The principal theme of the pageant is world friendship, with service, sacrifice and salvation, per se. At the conclusion of the entertainment Mrs. Richards and Mrs. Townsend were given an ovation.

When Milady Goes a-Shopping

Lingerie in a pale lomon shade of georgette is displayed in the windows of a Fifth Avenue shop. Today lingerie is the vogue for underthings of the more bunni pink and orchids.

There's hardly a one of us who does not remember the time when "spas were spas." Hideous things they were—the same for eight or eighty year-olds, and something to be avoided as long as possible. Now there are as many styles in gowns to suit various activities and personalities, as there are styles in footwear or hats. You need no longer dread the time when you must put on gowns for you may feel assured, at least if you go to Dr. Scholler, optometrist, that he will find a pair, that will not only give you comfort but will actually enhance your attractiveness. For golf, work, or driving there are the medium sized shell or metal rims. The heavy rimmed skull its for library or office work come in all colors to suit one's complexion or hair. There are always some people who do not wear these very heavy rims becomingly, so the new silhouette in cherry or black fits them exactly. If one needs very distinct vision, a pair of Oxfords, with large lens and arched nose piece, either in the folding or non-folding styles would give this superior effect. Dame Fashion decrees that ladies should wear rimless nose glasses for evening dress and rimless spectacles for the daytime. The professional man or business executive, the semi-colonial shape, with drop oval lens, slightly flat across the top is called to one with heavy or low eyebrows and conforms nicely to one's features. One could go on indefinitely, but if you are in the slightest doubt about the kind of glasses to get better consult Dr. Scholler at once, for he has made a great study of selecting the right kind to fit each person's personality and needs.

'Tis an old saying, that the traveler is judged by his luggage. In this line, the girl or woman who "totes" a modish Daisy Hat Bag on her neck week-end trip, is certain to present a very superior appearance. They are made of the finest quality patent leather, lined with dainty cretonne, extra pockets to carry one's vells or gloves in and room enough to carry two extra hats without crushing them in the least. Best of all they are very light and convenient to carry. You can select either the Golden Eagle, the every department at the same time you pick out your new spring hat, which, by the way, are much in evidence here at the present time. They have just received a number of attractive chapeaux in the new Hollywood shade, a cross between a hennu and a brown and very good this season. Another group of hats come in tangerine, with perhaps just a splash of black for contrast. The most feminine novelty is the circular veil, with border of gold or silver thread to be draped rakishly over these same hats. The Golden Eagle has an unusual showing of these novelty vells.

The latest arrivals from the New York markets are seen at Brock's this week. There are a few forerunners of what is soon to come, but they are smart to say the least. A frock, as inconsistent as a feminine heart is of black cotton, starting out to be straight and slender with a Grecian-like pointed drape suspended from one shoulder and reaching nearly to the knees. Madame comes—and there is revealed an unexpected draping of the wrap-around skirt, caught and held in place with a beaded ornament of oriental shape. Another model for the debutante daughter is of black chiffon over the palest of lemon yellow satin. Rows of exquisite black lace are superimposed on the skirt to form a tunic. The outline of the grille is marked with a tiny boutonniere of gold flowers. I might add that these six grand dresses are designed to lend a dual life. For evening they are sleeveless, for afternoon or less formal wear there are tiny cap sleeves to be tucked at the elbow.

Everyday brings new arrivals so the up-to-the-minute lady will daily drop into Brock's that she may keep in touch with the latest spring merchandise.

The season for cupid, hearts and lover's symbols is the occasion for many a few fancies given in Saint Valentine's honor. Already the society columns are forecasting many coming events of this nature. Insook's have anticipated this with a fine selection of Valentine novelties and favors. For the table are bright red nut baskets with cupid's attached, to be filled with candy hearts of all kinds and sizes. The Valentine candy favors are too numerous for description. In the line of favors are dressed (or rather partially dressed) cupid dolls, gold china slippers, and snapping mittens containing novel hats for the guests to wear. But it wouldn't be Valentine's day unless all the "war young things" got heart-shaped boxes filled with sweets from their best shells, so again Razook's showed forthright and laid in a good supply of Fancy Valentine Boxes. Confections. If you haven't already planned a party

"Cough and the world coughs with you," might well be adopted as a slogan of today for this damp, sloppy weather is conducive to bronchial and asthmatic trouble. The best remedy to relieve this is Baker's Bronchine, a cough medicine which has been on the market here in Janesville for the last forty years, and put out by J. P. Baker, formerly a local druggist. Bronchine contains ingredients which are soothing and healing to the irritated membranes of the throat. Its slightly sedative qualities enables one who just not sleep for weeks to rest quietly. It is also perfectly harmless and can be given to children without fear of upsetting their stomachs. So when you feel that "mean tickle in your throat" or "cough" until the gold has become deeply seated, stop into any drug store and take home a bottle of Baker's Bronchine and get immediate relief. Bronchine is thirty-five and sixty cent bottles. MOLLY.

The Chevrolet Utility Coupe is carrying off all the honors this season for being an all-around small family car. Father uses it daily in going to and from work, the mother uses it on Sunday to hold the young family comfortably, protecting the baby from the winds, storms and cold of winter. The mother uses it to get out and enjoy herself where she might otherwise feel she should stay housed up, for four of exposing the child to the play of large, making it slightly and airy and cool in summer. Most women who have their arms full of babies in summer and a shopping trip, or have a baby and all its wrappings to carry, appreciate the extra wide doors. But last and not least, the low maintenance cost makes it possible for the family of very, very modest income. By calling the R. W. Motor Sales Co., a courteous and capable salesman will gladly give you a satisfactory demonstration without obligation on your part.

"Cough and the world coughs with you," might well be adopted as a slogan of today for this damp, sloppy weather is conducive to bronchial and asthmatic trouble. The best remedy to relieve this is Baker's Bronchine, a cough medicine which has been on the market here in Janesville for the last forty years, and put out by J. P. Baker, formerly a local druggist. Bronchine contains ingredients which are soothing and healing to the irritated membranes of the throat. Its slightly sedative qualities enables one who just not sleep for weeks to rest quietly. It is also perfectly harmless and can be given to

Uncle Ed Fentress Comes A-Visiting

Uncle Ed Fentress, who has been living most of his life in Pennsylvania among the hills and valleys of the slopes of the Alleghenys, came out to Wisconsin last fall to visit his son, Fred, who has made a home in the Badger state for the last forty years. Uncle Ed has been out before, always in the summer and of course the family of grandchildren has seen the Pennsylvania ancestral home on many a Christmas or Thanksgiving. One of the reasons Uncle Ed has not been west in the winter is that he has never been able to fit his own notion of how a winter should be lived, to his son's surroundings. He looked over the place, the last time he was out and found that the Portland cutter had been torn to pieces and the boys were using the runners on a sled which they had built. It was impossible to imagine a man who had been reared in the hills along the Sinnemahoning, not having a cutter for speedy winter use. But what finally determined the old man to come out was the discovery of a big patch of wood land the other side of the lake, in which he counted almost three hundred sugar maple trees. This was a large grove and had never been used.

It has been drifty and cold all winter where Uncle Ed is visiting and the family has been having buckwheat cakes and sausages and store syrup for several weeks. That is at Uncle Ed's suggestion. Then there has been a renewed interest among the grandchildren over winter sports. The family has given a number of parties with old fashioned games—apples, doughnuts and biscuits with honey off the place, and milk, furnishing the refreshments. Out on the lake Uncle Ed has built an ice boat that has anything ever constructed there liked to a frazzle. To begin with, it took three old fashioned skates which were brought down from the attic. Two boards, one longer than the other, built like a Greek cross, one skate shipped loosely as a rudder, the other two at the ends of the arms of the cross and the sail made from two of mother's oldest sheets quilted together, slipped on a mast raised from the center where the crosses intersected. In the days it took to make this Uncle Ed has forgotten all about whether Governor Pinchot will run for president, or the worries over Teapot Dome.

From now on there will be plenty for Uncle Ed to do. He is making splices out of elder and sumach, ready to tap the 300 maple trees when the snow begins to go away in March. Then he has persuaded his son to invest in a lot of buckets and out in the side of a hill he has made a great fireplace and put a shed over it. This is not for a year but for all time, because Uncle Ed is going to show his son and grandsons what a lot of good money has been going to waste all these forty years. When he gets the sap running and the boilers going, he will have a maple sugar party just like they used to have sixty years ago when he came into the upper reaches of the Susquehanna country and began life with his Vermont ideas still impressive.

Uncle Ed has been showing all the boys and girls on the farms around there how winter can be made about as pleasant as summer with its long auto rides and tireless pleasures so far from home. It would take columns of space to tell all about it or to tell even of the things Uncle Ed has done to stir up social life in the section where he is staying. His idea of keeping boys and girls happy is to do something to make them happy and feel that they are just folks and not something else.

"We've been tryin' to stick too much of this here noncrackable varnish on our young folks and make 'em think they are unhappy if there ain't a circus performance provided for 'em. I believe in fixin' it so's they can make their own circus."

Will the government assess Doheny on his $100,000 "gift" to Mr. Fall? It will be an excess friendship profit.

The Gazette, Saturday, told of the good roads in Langlade county made with a tractor and a heavy roller which beat the snow down so that auto traffic was made possible. The DePere Journal-Democrat calls attention to this method of making winter roads as entirely feasible and suggests that it be put into operation.

Maybe they will have to put a sign on the top of the national capitol, "This Dome is NOT Tenet."

The income tax is paid on 23 billion dollars of assessable returns. Of this, more than half, 13 billions $80 millions, is made up of wages and salaries. To relieve the burden of taxation why not begin down there?

THE FAMOUS PIOUS FUND

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Washington.—When Feb. 2 rolls around each year a few diplomats, a few churchmen, a few financiers and perhaps a sprinkling of antiquarians of somewhat recondite history wonder if Mexico will observe the day by making a payment on account of the "pious fund," probably the most romantic accumulation of money in the new world. It forms a connecting link between the old and the new civilization of Christendom.

Under a ruling of the Hague Tribunal, Mexico is obligated to pay the United States, Feb. 2, in perpetuity, $43,050.93 as interest due from the pious fund. Huerta was the last ruler of Mexico who paid the installments. Since his time, the payments have been in default. It is expected that when conventions have been ratified and when the imminent recognition of the Mexican government has been perfected, these payments will be resumed and the arrears fully made up with interest.

The pious fund was founded in 1597. At that time the Church of Rome was devoting special attention to the colonization of that strange, wild finger of land which points southward from the southwestern extremity of the United States—Lower California. In these days, when the name of the sovereign state of California is known around the world for its great population, its great wealth and its many other attractions, it seems strange to recall that only a few years ago, relatively the region was unexplored and almost unknown and that Lower California, then Spanish and now Mexican territory, was the only California the world had heard of. It had many times as many people as the present American state; now it has but 25,000, most of them Yaqui Indians.

The Jesuits were in charge of the colonization of Lower or Baja California, and of the conversion of the numerous Indian population. The Jesuits were the great pioneers of the church at that period. A group of them organized an expedition headed by Padre Juan Maria Salvatierra of Milan and Padre Juan Ugarte. Their purpose was known and devout and wealthy noblemen of Italy, Spain, and other Catholic monarchies in Europe subscribed liberally to defray the expenses of the expedition. These sums founded the pious fund—so called because of the ecclesiastical nature of this expedition.

The story of what the Jesuits did in Lower California is a tale of absorbing fascination. How they established a chain of missions up the 750 mile long peninsula and into Alta California, the present American state; how they built El Camino Real, the king's highway, which extended the whole length of the territory, connecting the missions, is another story. This is but the story of the pious fund.

The Jesuits administered the fund, using parts of the capital, but chiefly merely the interest on it to build new missions and outfit new expeditions. One of the most munificent patrons was a Mexican, the Marquis Villapiente, who gave thousands of pesos. Indeed, the fame of the Jesuits' explorations had extended all over Europe and it became the fashion for dying noblemen and others to bequeath a part of their estates to the pious fund. The sum of $2,000 pesos, a vast fortune in those days, was bequeathed to it by Maria, Grand Duchess of Borjia. She was a kinswoman of the famous Caesar Borjia, and other members of the celebrated family. She stipulated that the money should be used by the fund to build three missions in the bleak mountain fastnesses of Lower California. They were called the Missions of San Borja, of Calamagret and of Santa Maria. The ruins of San Borja still stand in the northern part.

As the result of differences of opinion concerning policies the Jesuits were relieved of the administration of Lower California and the pious fund about 1800. In 1731, the pious fund amounted to $120,000; in 1755, $460,000 was added; some 10 or 12 years later, about $125,000 more was contributed and in 1784, a further $490,000. From about 1800, the king of Spain took over administration of the fund, acting as trustee, but it appears he appropriated $200,000 of his own use. The fund thereafter became the prey of various modern times, are called grafters. The interest on it usually disappeared and from time to time some of the principal would be missing.

Mexico finally won her independence from Spain and took over the fund. A special department of the government was established to administer it. In 1835 the Mexican government, needing money, sold the fund outright to a Frenchman, M. de Moiras, for a cash consideration of $2,000,000. By that time the popularity of the fund had died out and, of course, no more contributions would be made while the fund was privately owned. The fund was invested in various securities and, by purchasing the whole thing, M. de Moiras had the enjoyment of the income. The Frenchman, however, apparently had not reckoned with political vicissitudes, for a new administration in Mexico revoked the sale without compensation to him, and the Mexican treasury seized the fund.

For some time the income had not been paid to the Californian missions and nothing had been done because of the political disturbances. In the meantime, Alta California had become a state of the American union. The missions, to which the fund had been founded, by now extended all the way north into the United States, the northernmost being the Mission of San Francisco, where now is located the city of San Francisco. San Pedro, San Bernardino, and several other missions were in what now was American territory.

Bishops Almeyda and Amat, two prelates of the American missions, now interested themselves in the old fund. They took up the question with the Mexican government through the state department at Washington and, as a result of their importunities, a mixed claims commission was created to adjudicate the matter. An equal number of Americans and Mexicans were appointed. They sat in 1853 and their deliberations resulted in a deadlock.

In accordance with diplomatic usage a neutral referee was named. He was an English diplomat, Sir Edward Thornton. The referee, examining all the evidence he found in favor of the American State of California, deciding that the sum of $300,000.00 should be paid over by Mexico. It was not until 1890 that Mexico finally paid this. Annual interest payments in addition also were provided in the settlement but Mexico soon defaulted on these.

In 1923 the matter was taken before the international tribunal. Jackson Ralston represented the United States. The tribunal decided in favor of the United States, requiring Mexico to pay into our treasury the sum of $1,426,682.67, in which was included various amounts of arrears of interest extending as far back as 1869. The tribunal also decided that thereafter, forever, Mexico should make an annual payment to the United States of $43,050.93. For some years this was scrupulously paid and it is not doubted that when Mexico becomes tranquilized, payments will be resumed and the arrears of interest also paid up.

Since friend Doheny contributed $200,000 for the democratic campaign fund in 1920, everyone understands why his name starts off with "dough."

THE PAN IN THE SINK
I'm the sort of fellow that's fond of his home, I'd rather be there than to wander or roam; I'd rather sit down with my pipe and a book In that old easy chair in my library nook, With my children about me, the wife smiling and glad.

The hum of the traffic too distant to hear, Than travel afar at the end of the day For the joy of a concert, a lecture or play.

I'm a home-loving chap, there's no doubt about it, And I'm not a bit of a wanderer or a flake.

The thing I like most is to hang up my hat On the hook in the hall, when the night time slips down, And say: "Well, I'm done with the bustle of town."

I'm here where it's restful, I'm here where it's sweet! But even the joy of the home's not complete— Yes, even the home would be fairer, I think, Were it not for that pan which she keeps in the sink.

I'm not proud, I'm not fussy, I'm willing to bear My portion of duty and labor and care, But I hate with the hate of a venomous snake The feel of the drip of that kitchen pan! And I hate with the fury and malice of hate That trip with that pan to the old alley gate! I have courage enough, but from one task I shrink, 'Tis to carry the pan which she keeps in the sink.

SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON

A SAD TALE.

She came to me from sunny France, The blood within her veins was blue, For she had sprung from ancestry Elite among the "Parlez-vous."

When first I saw her graceful form My heart forgot all other guests; I strove to win her with sweet words, She seemed to heed my mild behests.

Her raven hair was black (of course) And her bronze eyes were (strangely) brown; I really blushed when she would gaze Upon my lap when I sat down!

She was at first a little wild, (The French are still coquettes, you know) But I tamed her, and when we went out She was the talk of every show.

We used to play upon the porch And frolic, childlike, on the lawn; One time she coyly kissed my cheek, Then vanished like a star at dawn.

At, it is said! I even fear My ears with tears are filling up, One day she took quite ill and then They came and shot my French bull pup!

WHAT WOULD BEN DO NOW?

The papers have been full of Benjamin Franklin's ideas of thrift.

Benjamin Franklin never had to pay 15 to 20 cents of every dollar to the government in form of income tax.

He could go to the store with a dollar and buy a basketful of meat and groceries.

He never had to pay for electric lights, gas, telephone or hard coal.

He didn't have to support an automobile, buy tires, gasoline and pay garage charges.

He got along without a radio set.

He hired servants for a dollar a week or for nothing and room and board. A modern hired girl who is willing to do anything except work gets $20.

A woman wants a divorce because she hasn't seen her husband in three years, although he has sent the money in every week. She must be hard to please.

Michigan woman asks divorce, saying her husband gave her a scalding bath. It is usually the husband who is kept in hot water.

It is a good plan to keep your temper. Nobody else in the world wants it.

DIABETES.
A little while ago I described in detail how to test your own condition. Now I propose to carry this practice further by encouraging the mere layman to save, say, another five to 30 dollars per annum by making his own tests. The presence of sugar in the urine doesn't necessarily mean diabetes, for any of us can achieve a passing of glycosuria by indulging in the favorite social pastime of hoarding sweets, still when sugar is found present it is certainly advisable to seek medical advice without delay. Since there are about a million cases of diabetes in the United States, you and I run a one to a hundred chance of having the disease soon or late—you soon, and I late. I feel reasonably sure, because you don't know so much about the cause of diabetes and how to prevent it as I do. I know ever so little about it myself, but that is a professional matter. Those of us known about the cause and prevention of diabetes: it won't cost you a nervous breakdown either. O, the c, it may save you one.

Here the damning fact, which is pretty strong circumstantial evidence, if you believe in that kind of evidence. Diabetes is 20 times as rare in those who are underweight at the age of 40 years, and over 40 times as rare in people who are thin at the age of 60 years. It is a disease most likely to occur in persons who are overweight, or of overweight is not the only cause of diabetes there is no question that within reasonable physiological limitation every individual can determine his own risk of diabetes and displacement. Overweight is clearly brought about by (1) too much food or (2) insufficient daily exercise, or some shameful combination of these two sins. I tell the stark truth about it, not only from a meat disposition, but in the hope of arousing the fighting spirit of a lot of misguided folk who are headed toward diabetes and worse fates.

Enough of this joy killing. Let us get to the test. The simplest and most satisfactory test for glucose (sugar) in the urine is Benedict's solution in which Benedict's solution is a standard solution obtainable from druggists.

Kindly tell me what you think of the kidney is, and what foods or fruits tend to turn the reaction of the urine from acid to alkaline. (Cure W. R. V.) Answer—Pyelitis means inflammation of the collecting basin of the kidney. Those who are inclined to drink the acidity of the urine: Grapefruit, lemon, orange, tomato, potato, peas, apples, carrots, beans, celery, beets, cauliflower, prunes, raisins, crackers and Graham bread. These foods are rich in alkali and buttermilk has little influence on the urine reaction. Eggs, milk, cream, butter, and fish all tend to increase the acidity of the urine.

Sim continued to row the flooring. He was a colonel as a bishop.
Pap called a covert smile.
"Stop that noise!" bawled the sheriff.

"Talking to me?" queried the deputy. Sim, continuing his activities.
"Stop it!"

"Riled, ain't he?" said Sim to Pap.
"Don't feed or annoy the fume-bers," advised Pap.

The sheriff grinned like a hyena.
"Come in, boys," he called.

Entered then from a rear room
his two deputies, Main and Green.
They were poking about for a medium height, and both were endowed with the cold, dispassionate eyes that are the result of professional contact with the ways and byways of a wicked world.

The sheriff, glancing at Sim, leaped forward across the table. "We've got a right nice place here for folks who can't obey orders," he said coolly.

"You going to stop?"

Sim lifted one foot in the air and let it down with a bang, and engaged caution. He followed with another. "Particular, ain't you?"

He sneered. "I'll be god yourself, with all the trimmings. Like us to kneel down and kiss your fool, I expect."

"The man's right, Sim," was Pap's contribution to the situation. "You're a forgetful fellow, and you must have forgot that Pap Sawyer, the sheriff of Port Creek County, he ain't good maybe. Top will put us both in jail. He's out to make a name for himself, Top. You know, Sim, folks are sayin' he's no good because he can't find out who killed Sue Thompson. They're sayin' maybe we'll be needing a new sheriff when election time comes round."

"I don't you worry about me not finding out who murdered Sue Thompson," snarled the provoked sheriff. "And don't you fret about me not being elected again, either."

"I ain't got no right to say, 'You can't buy every election.'"

"I won't have to buy the next one," Top Sawyer declared brashly.
"Winning the Thompson murder on to you and your outfit, will turn this trick for me."

"You think so," sneered Pap.
The sheriff permitted himself a covert smile. "I know so. In spite of Bill Derr's trying to get you off by failing to identify that riddle
and bridle, you ain't got a chance.
No more chance than you have to make false witness about me, and alongside each of you like there is now. Too busy paying attention to me to watch them, weren't you?"

"You ain't got no right to take our guns away before we're arrested," protested Pap.

"Never mind my rights," the sheriff told him coolly, looking across the room at the alarm clock ticking eternally away on the mantel.

"There's Tom now," he flung over his shoulder, hurrying to the door as a horrid howl (Pap's) led to a standstill in the street. But it was not Tom who entered at the hastily opened door. It was Bill Derr, a Bill Derr who walked with an exceedingly wobbly gait, but whose gray eyes, looking out of a bruised and battered countenance, and laid nothing of their customary sardonic neutralities.

"I thought you were Tom," mumbled
the sheriff and bit off an oath.
"Maybe Hickey ain't cousin," suggested Pap, grinning up at a chair
in the corner beyond him.

Pap glanced at Sim and nodded slightly. What he feared was coming to pass. The sheriff had sent for Tom Hickey, the Shush F. forman, and he, unless he had already been forewarned by Derr, would identify the riddle and bridle. And even if he had been forewarned by Derr, Pap had little hope that Tom

Hicks could stick to his story through hell and high water. For Hicks was an utterly honest soul unaccustomed to deceive, and the owner of a brain that functioned slowly. Under the sheriff's thorough questioning, the foreman would be apt to unintentionally tell the truth.

Pap Hawkins felt the pressure of the trap. He also felt a burning anger against the injustice of the thing. To be dumped for a crime he had not committed! It was too much. He looked at the nearest window. The table was between him and it. He looked toward the door. It was closed. The sheriff stood with his back against it. Pap shifted in his chair. The deputy beside him made a slight movement.
"No more," Pap said, the sheriff, partly divining his thought. "You'll have to see it through."

Derr fixed his sardonic gaze on Pap's blazing black eyes. "Did you ever take notice, Pap, how you can't shoot anything like as far or as true with a six-shooter as you can with a Winchester?"

The Hawkins eyes went blank. "I never noticed," replied Pap slowly.
"Shucks, I was hoping you had.
Your memory ain't what it used to be, is it?"

"It depends on what I have to remember."

"So it does. I never thought of that. Do you remember how Hank's arm is getting along?"

"He'll be shooting with it in a month," Pap answered with meaning.

Dinner Stories

A real estate man was plainly worried, and his wife asked him to tell her about the deal, Pittsburgh Sun relates. It seems that he had it fixed up to sell a man a lot building, a marble yard, with dock privileges, a factory site, and a summer garden, and take in part payment a block of frame tenements, a small subdivision, an abandoned lime kiln and a farm.

"He asked me a $20,000 mortgage on the lot building," explained the real estate man, "and I take over a second mortgage on the subdivision."

"I guess I got you," responded his wife. "But what's the deal about?"

"Well, I want four dollars in cash,"
—Pittsburgh Sun.

Marshall P. Wilder used to tell this story of two little children of a Christian Science family who were taken for the first time to see a Punch and Judy show, says Ayrtonaut. They enjoyed it heartily until Punch in a burst of anger leaped to beat Judy across the head with a big stick.

Whereupon the little girl, hastily covering her eyes with her hands, cried out heartily: "Don't look, Faddy, don't look. It's error!"

A certain group of older men in a small town in Virginia meet quite often and usually have something to drink, says Judge.

The oldest one was observed to always hold his nose while drinking.
One night he was asked why he did it and he disliked the smell.

His reply was: "If I smell the stuff it makes my mouth water and I don't want my drinks diluted with anything."

YOUR BABY and MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred is happy to advise all mothers about the care of their children of any age, or of any subject which does not belong in the field of the doctor.

There is no reason to change the baby's formula very soon, so long as he is gaining, and especially when even this amount gives him indigestion. Are you sure that is what it is?

The formula for him now, according to his weight, would be 25 ounces of milk, 15 ounces of water and 1 1/2 ounces of sugar. This is to be put in a large pitcher and well mixed and poured into six bottles. But I would not make any drastic changes except by one ounce degrees. Increase the milk one ounce daily and decrease the water, when you are sure the baby needs it. As long as he is adding weight each week, he does not need it.

I have a friend who has a little girl past 2 1/2 years old and the opening in her head is still very large.
Isn't that unusual? She doesn't talk plain or very much. Would it be because of that?

Answer
Of course I do not consider you a nuisance. I am glad when you like the advice well enough to come back for more.

The friend's baby, I am sorry to say, is much below normal. She should see a physician and have expert advice. God liver oil would be a good thing for the child.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Fish Chowder—Boil and slice four medium sized potatoes, add them to one quart of boiling water, cook until soft, drain, mash and return to the water in which they were boiled. Cut three slices of fat salt pork into dice, cook until the fat is extracted, then add two large peeled and sliced onions and cook until tender. Reheat the potatoes, add the onions, two cups of one pound of milk and small pieces and one quart of milk;
season with pepper, salt and one-quarter teaspoon curry powder. Let simmer half an hour, thickened with two-tablespoon cup of crushed cracker crumbs and nerve at once.

Roast Pork—Pork roast offers a wide variety in selection of cuts and in the method of preparation and serving. The cuts best suited to roasting include the leg, the loin and the shoulder. The shoulder cut may be boned and stuffed or rolled. This usually is the lowest priced cut, but the flavor is just as delicious as that of the other cuts. As a rule the skin has been removed from the meat before it reaches the housewife. If not it should be scored into about one inch squares, so as to permit the heat to penetrate the roast. Pork always should be baked through-ly and never served rare, as boast roast often is. If the pork is very fat, it is wise to remove some of the superfluous fat. After scoring the meat, wipe it with a damp cloth and rub with salt and pepper. Place it on a rack in a roasting pan and pour over it at least one cup of hot water. Set in a fairly hot oven (500 degrees) half an hour, or until the fat has begun to melt well on the surface. Baste once or twice. It is not necessary to sear pork in order to retain juices as with other meats, such as beef and lamb. Pork will cook through better if it is not seared too much. Reduce the heat and continue baking in a moderate oven (425 degrees) until the meat is done, allowing from 25 to 30 minutes a pound. A little less time may be allowed for a loin or rib roast. Baste the meat three or four times with the fat in the pan unless a self basting pan is used.

When the roast is done remove it from the pan and pour off most of the fat, leaving three or four tablespoons for gravy. Make the gravy by adding three tablespoons or flour, stirring to a paste, and then adding two or three cups of water or milk and cooking until thickened. The amount of liquid is varied to make the gravy of the consistency desired.

Steel and Motor Strength Feature of Week's Market

New York.—Strength of the steel and motor shares, based on favorable trade conditions, was the outstanding feature of this week's stock market. Considerable readjustment of speculative accounts took place in other sections of the list giving it the appearance of irregularly most of the time.

Declaration of an extra dividend of 50 cents a share by the United States Steel corporation and the announcement that earnings for the last quarter of 1925 totalled nearly $20,000,000, the highest since 1913, unquestionably was the most important item of trade news during the week. United States Steel common stock crossed 107 to the highest price since last April and the independent steels moved up in sympathy.

Reports of the cuts had a depressing effect on the rubber shares. American Woolen broke below 70 on reports of poor trade conditions. Tobaccoes were helped by merger reports although Liggett and Myers issues broke badly on the announcement of an additional stock issue.

Speculative expectation of an early dividend resumption on Southern railway, Wabash preferred A, and St. Louis, Southwestern, accounted for the strength of the low priced railway shares. Southern railway crossed 47, a new high for all time. A number of the high grade dividend paying issues, particularly New York Central and Atchafalpa, also were in good demand.

Money rates strengthened slightly in response to the increased month-end requirements for funds.

TODAY'S MARKET

GRAIN

Chicago Review.—Rising in which a house with foreign and southwestern connections took the lead gave new strength to the wheat market today during the early dealing. Opening prices, which varied from unchanged figures to 1/2c lower, May $1.11 1/2, 1 1/2, and July $1.10 1/2, 1 1/2, were followed by an advance all around to well above yesterday's finish.

On the advance, September delivery established a new high price record for the season and July equalled the previous high point. The close was unsettled at a shade to 1/2c net gain, May $1.11 1/2, 1 1/2, 1 1/2, and July $1.10 1/2, 1 1/2, 1 1/2.

Corn and oats sympathized with the wheat advance. Houses with country connections were buyers, and it was said that the break-up of roads was interfering with rural deliveries. After opening unchanged to 1/2c off, May $0.82 1/2, 1/2, 1/2, the corn market underwent a little further rise, and then scored general gains.

Week-end realizing sales lowered the market later. The close was unsettled at a shade to 1/2c net decline. May $0.82 1/2, 1/2, 1/2, and later turned up.

Oats started unchanged to 1/2c lower, May $0.41 1/2, 1/2, and later turned up.

Provisions were easier, despite higher quotations on hogs.

PICTURES OF PEOPLE AND EVENTS TELL STORY OF WEEK

DISCOVERIES REVEAL MYSTERIES OF AMERICAN "EGYPT"

Ruins of the House of the Magician at Uxmal, and an elaborately sculptured boulder found in Guatemala.

Some of the mystery concerning a high civilization which flourished in Central America 3,000 years ago has been removed by discoveries made in ruins in Guatemala by Dr. Herbert J. Spinden, of Harvard University.

One of the most impressive of these ruins is the House of the Magician at Uxmal, on a lofty pyramid constructed in two periods of the history of the people. The door of the House opens into an annex, which is approached by a projecting stairway up the face of the pyramid. Another interesting discovery was an elaborately sculptured boulder, one detail of which is a human figure, the artwork revealing the high culture attained by the people of this vanished race.

In this civilization there were men with secret minds equal to those of today, and Dr. Spinden has been able to fix definite dates in their history through solving inscriptions in rock set down at the direction of these ancient savants.

One explanation of the origin of this race is that they were an offshoot of the people who formed the remarkable civilization supposed to have flourished on the lost—and almost mythical—Atlantis.

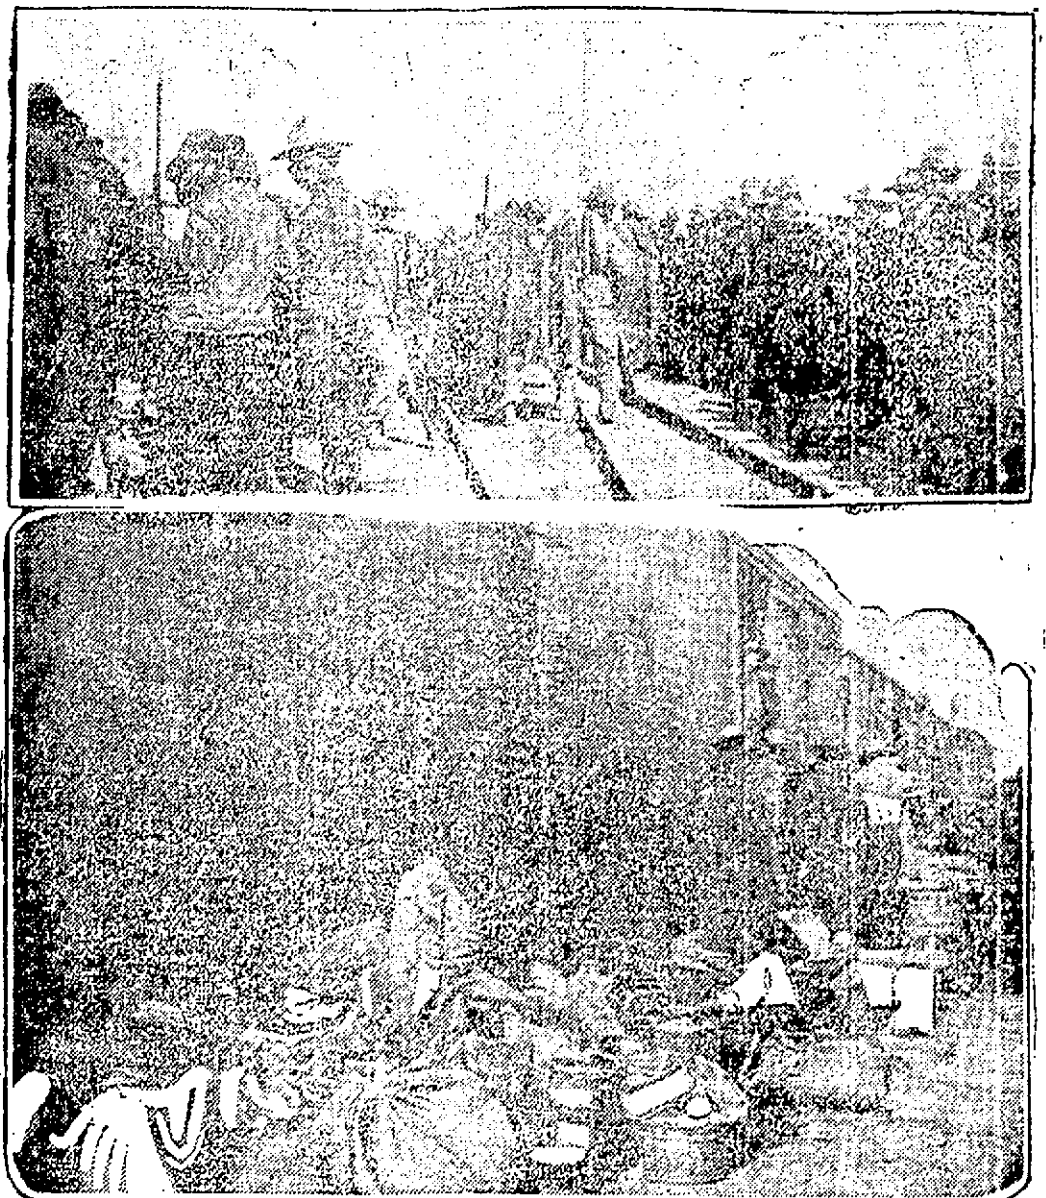

KALENIN LOOMS LARGE AS RUSSIA SEEKS SUCCESSOR TO DEAD LEADER

Kalenin, center, on an inspection tour.

President Kalenin of the Russian republic of soviets has already begun to loom larger in the affairs of the government in Moscow, now in a state of unrest due to the death of Lenin, its founder. Incidentally, his dramatic announcement of the death of Lenin is being compared with Antony's oration over Caesar, as reported by Shakespeare.

"DETOUR" THROUGH U. S. AIDS OREGON TROOPS

Mexican Federal troops stretching their legs on American soil while en route to attack rebels. Below, the federal troops encamped in Mexico.

Action of the Mexican government in sending "regular" troops, consisting chiefly of Yaqui and Maya Indians, through the United States, with the permission of Washington, appears to have been a strategic move that will bear fruit in as much as the forces of De la Huerta, rebel chieftain, are now between two armies loyal to Obregon. The Yaqui and Maya troops carry a large number of women camp followers with them, the women having the task of preparing their meals and making them comfortable as they await the battle cry.

RACE WITH DEATH TO SAVE BABE'S LIFE

Cletus Moore in the arms of a se.

Lucie Moore of St. Louis earns only $19.25 a week, but a baby is priceless. Cletus, eight-month old son of Moore and his wife swayed a carpet tack and it lodged in his lung. St. Louis physicians agreed that only one man in the United States, in their opinion, could save the infant, Dr. Chaveller Jackson of Philadelphia. A church organization provided the money and the baby was rushed a thousand miles across the country to the waiting doctor. It will live, it is believed.

LONDON EXPECTS KELLOGGS TO ENTERTAIN LAVISHLY

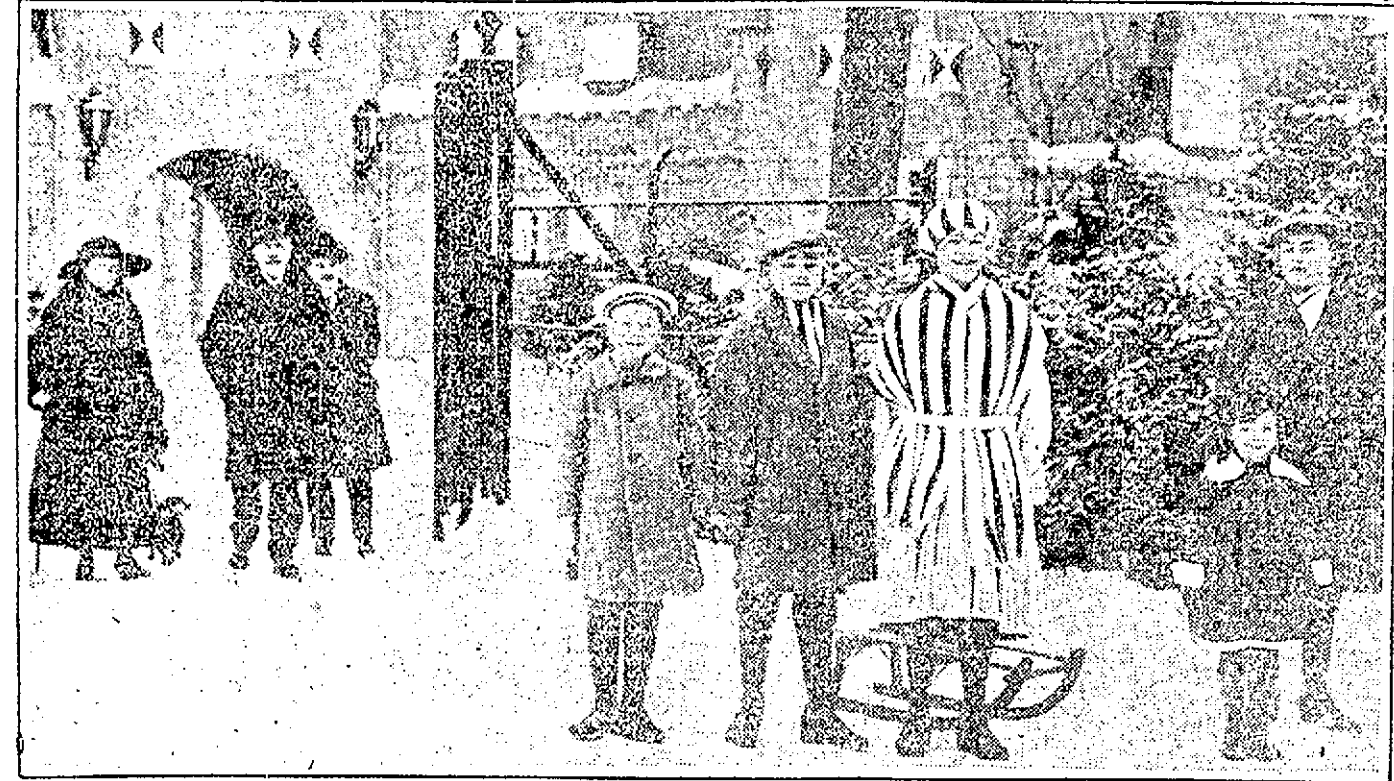

An interior view of Crewe House, and The Marquis of Crewe (above), Ambassador and Mrs. Kellogg (below).

London is expecting Frank B. Kellogg of Minnesota, new ambassador to the Court of St. James, to go in for lavish entertainment on a scale uncommon among recent envoys of the United States in Great Britain. He has taken over Crewe House, one of the show-places of fashionable Mayfair, and will also have a large country estate. The house, which is the London residence of the Marquis of Crewe, now British ambassador to France, is rich in art treasures.

EX-KAISER POSES WITH HIS PRINCESS-WIFE AND HER FAMILY

The former Kaiser at his retreat in Holland with his wife and her five children.

HEADS NEW ORDER OF "CRUSADERS" IN GREAT BRITAIN

Lt. Gen. Sir Edward Bethune.

Five thousand British ex-soldiers are banded together in a new secret order called the "Order of the Crusaders." Lt. Gen. Sir Edward Bethune is head of the new body, with the official title of Grand Keeper of the Records. He denies the organization is opposed to the Jews.

HISTORIC KREMLIN SCENE OF RED LEADER'S FUNERAL

Red troops marching about the Kremlin in Moscow.

The Kremlin in Moscow has become a focal point for the eyes of the world with the death of Lenin and the resumption of the struggle of the various political elements for supremacy. The Kremlin is the center of Moscow, embracing royal palaces, cathedrals, an arsenal and other public buildings. It will be the scene of Nicolai Lenin's funeral.

"LIME IS MAGIC" GROWING CLOVER

By L. J. MERRIAM
Watworth County Agent

Although it is commonly said that sweet clover will grow on most any soil, even though it is low in fertility and needs lime, yet Burton Park, of the town of Geneva, who had several acres of sweet clover pasture this year, says that he found it much better where lime was applied. He noticed that near the road where the lime dust had been spread, the stand of sweet clover was much thicker and the growth nearly twice as large as further back where the lime dust did not reach. In fact on part of the field the growth was rather unsatisfactory due to a need of lime even on the fairly good soil.

Burton is strong for sweet clover pasture, but says that he hopes to sow all his fields hereafter that are sown to sweet clover and alfalfa, as he feels sure it will pay.

Need Warm Henneries

Lime, phosphate, as well as Ray Marshall, LaFayette, and several other of our leading poultrymen who were getting better than 50 per cent egg production from their hens, report a sharp drop in the egg lay since the recent cold spell. Although the hens soon "come back" yet this condition emphasizes the need of warm housing and good ventilation to prevent this slump when eggs are high.

This can be prevented quite largely by using double wall-houses with a dead air space between the walls. Ray Marshall and some others expect to go even further and put a fire in their laying houses during extreme weather.

Sodolot Still Selling

A 20,000-pound car of sodolot was distributed from Elkhorn to Watworth county farmers the past week. Most of the men were able to get home in spite of bad roads, some making trips nearly 40 miles. Although this is the only carload that

Make Your Milkers Pay

Every cow in your herd can be made to produce up to her full capacity.

—if you look well to her ration, her health, her appetite and her digestion.

Will Your Family Be Happy Next Spring?

If yours is one of the few remaining families lacking an automobile, no doubt you have finally decided to get one within the next four months.

If you have not so decided, better make up your mind NOW that you are going to bring your family up-to-date by providing the modern means for economical transportation.

A low-priced, modern automobile like the Chevrolet has become indispensable to the American family of ordinary income. Without it they are prisoners on limited range—like hobbled horses in a pasture.

A million other families can easily prove to you that

The Better Way Is With Chevrolet

The inspiring beauties of Nature, the interesting and educational features of other places and other types of people and ways of living remain things to be read about, or seen dimly in cold photographs, until you are free to GO TO THEM at your convenience and pleasure.

Suppose you have definitely decided to buy a Chevrolet next Spring.

That does not necessarily mean you are going to get it.

Anyone posted on conditions in the automobile business will tell you that thousands of families in this locality are going to be unable to get cars next Spring. That has been true almost every Spring for the last ten years, but the shortage in April, May and June, this year, is going to be more serious than ever before.

for Economical Transportation

There are just two ways of making sure of getting your Chevrolet for use when the flowers and balmy breezes of Spring lure you to the country roads:

Buy it NOW, or Order it NOW.

If you do not want to pay for it in full at this time, any Chevrolet dealer will arrange terms to suit your convenience, so you can pay as you ride.

You will be surprised to learn how easy it is to pay for a Chevrolet and to get possession and use of it.

If you want to order one for Spring delivery, we urge you to do it at once, so the dealer can in turn arrange NOW to include your car in his stock order.

That is the only way he can be sure of making delivery when you want it.

Please realize these statements are made by us in good faith, and we mean just what we say about the prospective shortage of cars.

The only way to be sure of a Chevrolet next Spring is to order it NOW.

MOTORIST'S

Twenty Years of Successful Automobile Building

January 28, Buick celebrates its twentieth birthday.

Proud as Buick is of its growth within the short space of two decades, it is not in its vast organization that Buick takes its greatest pride. Rather it is in what these attainments indicate.

Buick's position of leadership has been achieved solely by the accomplishments of Buick cars in the hands of more than a million owners. In their dependable performance, in their satisfying comfort, and in their year by year fulfillment of every demand of motoring, Buick cars have won the place they occupy.

From the rich background of experience—with all of its unequalled manufacturing facilities—and inspired by a deep sense of personal obligation to Buick friends, owners and the general public—Buick will seek ever to maintain on an even higher level the confidence of the public which it now enjoys.

What to Do When You Get Stuck in the Mud

One of the greatest pleasures you get out of your car comes when you use it to carry you to some quiet spot in the country, away off the main road, where you can spread out the lunch under the trees and forget for a time that there are such places as crowded, dirty cities.

Sometimes, to get to the most desirable places, you have to drive over open fields or along soft dirt roads, and it occasionally happens that you come to a soft spot and before you know where you are, your rear wheels are hub deep in the soft ground.

If it is your first experience in getting bogged, you are liable to have a very interesting time for the next hour or so, for unless you are a very experienced driver, you will, in trying to get out, only cause your wheels to sink in deeper.

For a start, you will probably try to attempt to get out by speeding up the engine as fast as possible, with the result that one of the wheels will begin to spin, and dig its way deeper into the mud. DON'T SPIN THE WHEELS, or you will never get out of the hole unless someone tows you out.

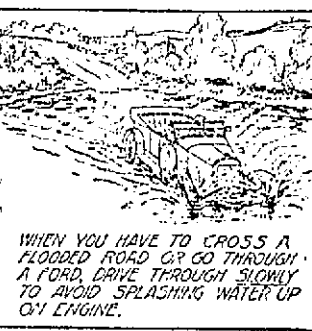

When you find you are stuck, the first thing you should do is to get out and put on non-skid chains, if you have any. If you have not got chains, then the next best thing to use if you have it, is a piece of rope. It may be, however, that you do not possess a piece of rope, either, but have some wire. In this case, take a piece of thick cloth and wrap several thicknesses of it around the wire. Wrap the wire around the tire several times so that it will not break away, but be sure to use enough cloth around the wire so that it will not cut the tire.

To put on non-skid chains, it will be necessary for you to jack up the wheels. It is a good idea to carry with you a piece of wood about 1 1/2 inches thick by 6 inches wide by 12 inches long, so that in case you ever have to jack up the wheels in very soft ground, you have something to put the jack on. When you jack up the wheel, fill up the hole, if possible, with tree branches, stones, or anything dry and hard.

Now relieve the car of as much weight as possible; make all passengers get out and assist by pushing the car while you let in the clutch slowly, and speed up the engine just enough to cause the rear wheels to move, but not enough to cause them to spin.

Here is a little tip that will help you when you are stuck in mud or sand and have absolutely nothing you can put on the wheels to stop them from spinning. Speed up the engine just enough to cause the wheels to begin to spin slowly, then dab the foot brake two or three times lightly. This has the effect of throwing the weight of the car on the rear wheels for a second and gives them traction. Just give a quick dab—one, two, three, being careful not to speed up too fast or you will cause the wheels to spin again.

You know you can walk up a very steep hill much easier if there are steps cut in the slope. If the hill is very steep and straight, walking is much more difficult. When you put non-skid chains on your wheels when you are pulling through soft ground, you put steps on your tires which enable your engine to get a grip and pull you out of the hole. If the wheels cannot get a grip, the power of the engine cannot be transmitted and used at the rear wheels.

The illustration shows a common fault that some drivers make when they have to cross a flooded road or stream that runs across the road. Before driving across a body of water, it seems like common sense to investigate a little first to find out how deep the water is, and whether the bottom is hard, before you try to cross with your car. Yet some drivers neglect this simple precaution, with the result they reach the center of the stream, then the engine stops because the water has reached the Ignition System.

Providing the water is not so deep that it will reach the Battery or Carburetor, you can get through a flooded part of road, for if you do, you are liable to splash up enough water on the Ignition to short circuit the current and cause the car to come to a stop, leaving you in a very disagreeable situation.

When you have to cross a flooded road or stream, drive through slowly to avoid splashing water up on engine.

all right if you drive SLOWLY. DO NOT attempt to RUSH a flooded part of road, for if you do, you are liable to splash up enough water on the Ignition to short circuit the current and cause the car to come to a stop, leaving you in a very disagreeable situation.

Don't Say Brake Lining—Say "Thermoid"

When your car is overhauled you will have new brake linings applied. But be sure it's "THERMOID." There is a lot of difference in brake lining. "THERMOID" contains 40% more material than ordinary lining, compressed (not woven) under 2000-lb. hydraulic pressure to the square inch. "THERMOID" is also "granulated," an exclusive process which enables it to resist moisture, oil and gasoline. These are the reasons why "THERMOID" gives the maximum protection right down to wafer thickness.

The Way Of The Want Ad

There are two kinds of newspaper advertising; one is general in character and known as Display Advertising; the other is specific in character and known as Want Advertising.

Display advertising is dominant in size, may contain illustrations, a variety of type faces, heavy or light, and borders, and allows for proper disposition of white space.

Want Ads, on the other hand, are usually set in small type without borders or illustrations, placed in a separate section of the newspaper, grouped and classified for quick location of what is wanted by the reader.

Display advertising must necessarily seek out the reader's attention at the time that the reader is engaged in looking for the news of the day. For that reason large space, attractive illustrating and interesting copy are desirable and effective.

The Want Ad, on the other hand, requires no mechanical aids to gain attention. The reader looks for the Want Ad after the want is created in his mind. He is, therefore, interested beforehand in the advertiser's story. Every reader of Want Ads is a prospect to some want advertiser, but an inadequate telling of the story by the advertiser can dampen the reader's interest.

In fact, many Want Ads that fail to produce, do so not through lack of pulling power on part of The Janesville Gazette (because by far the greater number of Want Ads do produce results,) but because they are carelessly worded and thoroughly unequipped to tell a story which will prompt an action. Want advertisers must stimulate action in order to turn prospects into sales.

Adopting the slogan, "Tell More and Sell More," will make Want Ads more successful and adequate initial expenditures more profitable.

How to Write a Want Ad

There are four things to keep in mind in using Want Ads. They are: The market, the price, the particular character of your offer and the working of your Want Ad.

Assuming that your market and price are fair and that your offer is a desirable one, the greatest factor for the consideration of the Want advertiser is the "wording of his offer."

A Want Ad is a little thing, but its small size does not indicate that it can be constructed without effort or thought. Want Ads are remunerative in direct proportion to the amount of effort and thought that is expended on them.

The next time you write a Want Ad, make a list of the important factors of your offer. Then phone Mary Brown, 2500, and she will help you with the wording to distinguish it from other offers which appear beside yours in the Classified Columns.

A Classified Ad written thus almost invariably brings immediate returns.

Read and use the Classified Columns everyday. It's a habit that will save you money and keep you informed as to the market value of various kinds of merchandise.

If you have a telephone you may phone, bring in or mail your Classified Ad and have it charged.

THE JANESVILLE GAZETTE

"An Unusual Newspaper"

Father Time is relentless in turning the pages of life's calendar. Man, in regret, often cries, "Backward, turn backward, O Time!" But all to no avail. The last page of the old year is gone and Time holds it up that you may read. He is an expert book-keeper, too. He makes no mistakes in writing indelibly what you have or have not achieved in the year just closing. Sometimes it is anything but pleasing, especially if it must read:

"Time wasted, money gone, efforts and realizations wasted."

Many a man started out the year with the thought of providing a home for himself and his loved ones. Instead, he has procrastinated and squandered until the last day of December fades away into the past—and he has failed to realize his expectations.

You can't bring back the time that is wasted, the money that is spent, the efforts and realizations that have been dissipated by false moves.

"The old year is dead—let it die." It has passed into history. Let it go. If you have made failures, forget them. BUT the new year comes with a bright vision of what can be achieved. Welcome it—and act upon it. The sun rises during the new year on YOUR OWN HOME—either in reality or imagination—imagination that is backed by determination and all the energy you possess.

Possibly you dallied along last year with nothing to show for it, but—you will not so fritter away your time and resources in the new year. Instead of buying rent receipts that only provide mute evidence of what you might have done and didn't, you will accumulate cancelled notes on your home, every one of which means so much more real wealth that is your very own.

Instead of your children having to spend their play hours on the streets, you will provide their own front lawn and back yard, where they will pass youth's golden hours in happiness and safety. Instead of that beloved wife wearing herself out in frequent "movings," she will glean joy untold as she beautifies and adorns her own home nest—where landlords cease from troubling and draymen destroy not the furniture in trundling it from place to place.

Ah, it is an attractive picture the young year holds up to your gaze.

Are you equal to the opportunity?

Considering your income, your health and strength, and the inspiration engendered by wife and kiddies—OF COURSE YOU CAN—AND YOU WILL.

These citizens and firms have been watching you and hoping you would get out of the renting class by buying or building a home of your own. They are paying for this series of home-building articles to help to inspire you to action. They have retained the advice of home experts, which is yours for the asking.
